Pop-up GAAPinars on 18 and 25 June

Detailing the financial-reporting and auditing issues you need to know about in COVID-19 times

The COVID-19 pandemic is exposing many entities to increased risk and adverse financial outcomes. In many cases, businesses have been forced to make significant changes to cope. And the challenges will continue.

Governments (federal, state, and local) and some financial institutions have provided assistance packages to cushion the virus's impact. They're helpful.

Standard-setters, regulators and others have provided information to help businesses, accountants and auditors to appreciate financial reporting and auditing implications.

But is all this enough?

The issues facing financial professionals in COVID-19 times are many and complex ... too hard to confront without expert insights.

Let the specialists at GAAP Consulting make sense of it all – saving you time and money.

Now is time to bring COVID-19's financial-reporting and auditing risks into sharp focus, especially with 30 June coming up.

Our new sessions aim to do just that.

GAAP Consulting's experts – names you know and trust

Our promise is to give you access to some of Australia's best financial thinkers. Our presenters are experts in their fields and passionate speakers. Carmen Ridley is an AASB member, Sonya Sinclair quality-reviews for CA ANZ, and Colin Parker is a former AASB member and heads the GAAP Consulting advisory and litigation team.

Make the most of your GAAPinar experience by:

- Submitting your questions on a topic three days ahead of a session
- Be a well-prepared 'chat person' who submits questions during sessions
- After each session, conduct a debrief to reinforce lessons learnt and identify your must-do's
- Identify follow-up questions for GAAPinar presenters, and
- Give feedback on sessions (and let us know other topics you'd like us to cover).

Ask the experts – submit your questions in advance to andrew@gAAPtraining.com.au. We will answer them during the GAAPinars.
